

Forty Years of Essays and Stories: A Literary Tapestry Unraveled

In The Name Of God The Compassionate The Merciful

A general overview of the story:

The aim of this essay is to have a detailed study in different elements of short story in The Tell-Tale Heart by Edgar Allan Poe. Therefore I am talking about the name of the story. Tell-tell heart shows that the story has something to do with heart and maybe a mystery or secret which will be revealed by this heart. Of course we have no idea what is going on in the story so we go through the story to find out more information about tell-tale heart.

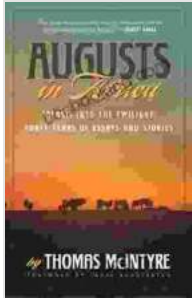

The story begins by the speaker talking about his nervousness. He claims that he is nervous and that is definitely true but he tries to substantiate that he is not crazy. In the first lines of the story the narrator talks about a kind of disease that sharpened his senses but he persists he is okay although he suffers from that disease, he is not mad. By a quick look in the first paragraph of this story we can figure it out that something is going to be wrong in this story. If a person is fine it will be pointless to mention that. Why should a normal person try to prove he or she is crazy? Still we don't have enough clues to see what is wrong with that person so we need to continue studying the story.

Now we find out that the narrator has got a problem which is the old man's eye that is like a vulture eye. The narrator continues telling the impact and influences that the old man's eye had on him and he explains how painful this experience is which leads to a murder scheme. Now the narrator wants to confirm his claim that he is not crazy by telling how this murder had taken place. He says he has no desire for the old man's money nor his golds he even says he loves the old man because he is a kind man who has never insulted him but his eye forced him to commit the crime. He says he has gone to the old man's bedroom for seven nights but each time his eye that blue pale eye which was called as vulture eye was closed so he can't kill him since the old man is not the problem but the eye is doomed to death. This is for the eighth night that he is standing for a long period of time watching the old man lie down on the bed.
